History

Row-boats and ocean liners, covered wagons and space capsules, knights and moon-men--these are the things that remind us of yesterday and today--things in such contrast to one another that it becomes apparent to the individual at first glance. But then again investigation brings out a basic resemblance, the root from which evolves the final product. Always we continue to learn newer, better methods in order to produce the best product possible. Such is the case at Cabarrus.

At first it was an effort to be born and brought forth to the community. Like the skeptics of the space age, these people asked, "Do we need it? Isn't it too large? How can we afford it?" Yes, we needed it; it wasn't large enough; and somehow with God's help and guidance it has managed to survive.

In May, 1943, the school of x-ray was opened and to date has graduated forty-six students. The hospital has staffed its x-ray department with its own graduates ever since. The school is nationally accredited by the American Association and the American Society of X-ray Technicians.

In 1941, the Board of Trustees and Administrator realized that the nursing situation was critical because so many nurses were going into military service. They voted to open a school of nursing. Student rooms and classrooms were set up in the solaria of the nurses' residence; procedure books were written; catalogues and brochures were prepared; and the first instructor of nurses, Miss Dorothy Adams, a graduate of Duke University, was employed. Most of the teaching was done by members of the medical staff. In February, 1942, the school of nursing opened officially with state approval and with an enrollment of seventeen students. Ten were graduated in the spring of 1945, and of these students one made the highest average in the state on state board examinations that year.

During the earlier years of development, students were responsible for nursing service as well as for learning what was presented to them in the classrooms. Today's program has been changed dramatically to emphasize theory and then service; it is believed that without proper knowledge complete nursing care is impossible.

In 1945 a new two-story building was erected to house the school of nursing. It included classrooms, science laboratory, dietetics laboratory, library, recreation room, and dormitory space for the students and faculty. This enabled the school to increase its enrollment to approximately 100 students. A third-story, as well as another wing, was added to this building in 1954. The addition provided an auditorium, lounges, kitchenette, laundry, a larger library, and additional dormitory space. To date the school has graduated 407 students. It has maintained its approval from the State Board of Nurse Registration and Nursing Education since opening. The National League for Nursing gave its temporary accreditation in 1952 and the school received full accreditation in 1962, making it one of four diploma schools in North Carolina to be accredited.

In 1954, a school of laboratory technology was started. To date this school has graduated nineteen students.

In almost twenty years Cabarrus has managed to travel many miles forward in progress, and we as students are proud to say we have been a small part. Whereas in the beginning we were represented by only ten graduates in the school of nursing, now we come forth twenty-eight strong.

We are all wondering now, "How much change will 1984 have to offer?"

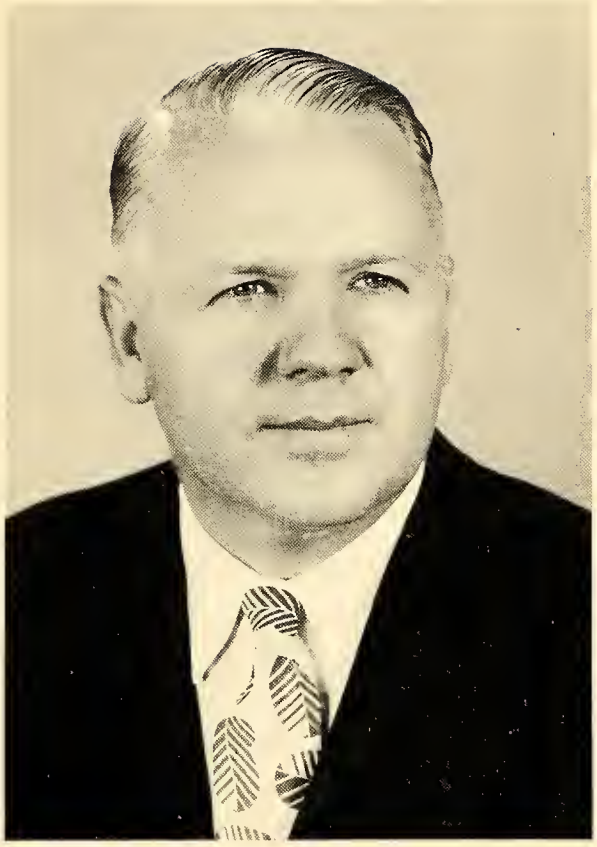
In Memoriam



Dr. Paul Maulden

Dr. Paul R. Mauldin performed an appendectomy on the first patient to enter our hospital in July, 1937, and was an active member of the staff until his sudden death on August 30, 1963.

After graduating from the Medical College of the University of North Carolina and the Medical School of New York University, he interned at Bellevue Hospital in New York.

A resident of Davidson, Dr. Mauldin was one of the first surgeons to locate in Kannapolis, initiating his practice in 1934.

"With unrelenting crescendo, the symphony of a life replete with melodic progression hastens to its finale. And a friendship that is ours to share, with its 'largos' and 'allegros' moves everlasting; onward in sweet memories."

Dr. Burns

Dr. Joseph Eugene Burns, well-known Concord physician until his death February 19, 1964, was a native of Goldston, North Carolina.

He graduated from the Medical College of Virginia and served his internship at Bellevue Hospital and City Hospital in New York City.

A veteran of World War I, Dr. Burns established his practice in Concord in 1927, where he practiced for more than thirty-five years.

"I think that to have known one good, old man -- one man, who, through the chances and mischances of a long life, has carried his heart in his hand, like a palm-branch, waving all discords into peace--helps our faith in God, in ourselves, and in each other more than many sermons."

--G. W. Curtis.

Class History

This is an introduction to our class history, merely an introduction, not an ending--it serves to mark the beginning--it goes on following even a final walk down the aisle and the passing of State Boards.

We were forty-two aspiring young girls when we entered Cabarrus Memorial Hospital School of Nursing in September of 1961. Our freshman year started with a watermelon slicing given by the Concord Business and Professional Women's Club, and then we really began to get acquainted with our fellow students at Cook's Buffalo Ranch where the menu was all the hamburgers we could eat. The Country Club gave us a swimming party. These parties served to start us off; and then suddenly, we were engrossed in studies and on our way.

We held our first class meeting and elected the following: President, Bettye Cannon; Vice-President, Evelyn Moore; Secretary, Vivian Hallman; Treasurer, Wanda Whitley; and advisors, Mrs. Heatherly and Miss Green.

We developed our voices in Glee Club twice a week and at Christmas and Easter entertained civic and professional groups.

The bi-monthly trips to the "Y" were a bit rowdy at times, and a few were campused for not participating in exercises.

In October, we were swept up in the rush of getting ready for the Halloween Carnival and Dance. We felt we really "belonged" after these two events.

In January, after a much needed two weeks vacation, we were formally introduced to the clinical area. Would we ever learn to distinguish bedside commodes from wheelchairs?

February was brightened by the Valentine Dance and thirty-four eager "Fresh" joined the ranks of the Juniors and Seniors.

Two of our girls, Miss Ann Mangum and Miss Gail Cheek entered the "Miss Kannapolis Pageant" and Gail was the reigning "Miss Kannapolis" for the year 1961-62. Miss Vivian Hallman was a semi-finalist in the "Miss Concord Pageant."

July brought the ever-looked-forward-to Junior-Senior Prom. Curious Freshman spied and secured refreshments for their entire hall.

August followed on the heels of July bringing two more weeks of vacation after which thirty-two sunburned Juniors returned to tear open sealed envelopes and promptly attach blue bands to white caps. As Juniors we entertained our "Little Sisters" and presented them with their caps.

We found, much to our consternation, that we could no longer discuss activities as previously--while some were feeding babies in O. B. others were busy filling croupettes on Pediatrics, and those in Med-Surg had never seen either!

Our Junior Class officers were: President, Bettye Cannon; Vice President, Vivian Hallman; Secretary, Barbara Clary; Treasurer, Judy Price; and advisor, Mrs. Lentz.

In October we proved to be superior salesmen by selling more tickets to the Halloween Carnival than the other classes.

During the Christmas holidays we could be found on duty in various units. We learned that people still become ill, even on holidays.

We enjoyed the annual Valentine Dance again in February. Then Spring was upon us, and Ann Mangum Warner and Evelyn Moore participated in the National Student Nurses' Convention in Atlantic City.

Vacations came early this year, and the latter part of the summer was spent arranging the Junior-Senior Prom for a wonderful "Roman Holiday."

In September, blue bands were stripped and black ones took their places. Susan Green, Barbara Perry, and Mary Mays were welcome additions to our class, making us twenty-nine strong. Heading our class as President was Judy Price. The other officers were: Vice-President, Bettye Cannon; Secretary, Mary Kathryn Bannister; Treasurer, Evelyn Moore; and Advisor, Miss Young.

The first group left for psychiatric affiliation in Lexington, Kentucky, September 10, 1963. Various means of transportation were used, but none were lost; and we all arrived safely-minus one Buick transmission.

To those who remained behind, the evenings and nights lay ahead, and these girls quickly learned the arts of "Team Nursing" and "Charge Duty."

Group one returned Christmas to take charge duty, and it was six months before our class was together again. It was great to be united again and commandeer the center of the cafeteria. As Seniors we made the Ne'er-to-be-forgotten trip to Durham for the NCLN Convention.

The rest of our year was spent in looking forward to being guests of honor at the Junior-Senior Banquet, Senior Parties, and Graduation.

We entered, aspiring to become nurses, and now the years have passed and the goal is near. Now, we look only to the future---we shall have numerous fond remembrances of those who aided us in attaining our dream and of the many friends who have come to mean so much to us.

Eastern State Hospital

Lexington, Kentucky, becomes a home away from home three months out of the senior year. Noted for blue grass, magnificent horses, and trailing white fences, it forms a pleasurable setting for Eastern State Hospital.

Founded in 1817, it is the second oldest mental hospital in the United States. Students see and participate in modern intensive treatment which is available to approximately 1,800 patients.

During the student's affiliation program, she is introduced to the many different departments working together in caring for the patients. Recreational, occupational, and industrial therapists co-ordinate the individual patient's treatment and care along with the physician, social worker, nurses, and other personnel.

Knowledge leads to greater understanding and both combine for better nursing.

The Florence Nightingale Pledge

I solemnly pledge myself before God and in the presence of this assembly, to pass my life in purity and to practice my profession faithfully. I will abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous, and will not take or knowingly administer any harmful drug. I will do all in my power to maintain and elevate the standard of my profession, and will hold in confidence all personal matters committed to my keeping and all family affairs coming to my knowledge in the practice of my calling. With loyalty will I endeavor to aid the physician in his work, and devote myself to the welfare of those committed to my care.
